Fund Commentary – January 2025

2025 got off to a strong start with equity markets performing well and market breadth broadening. There was an increase in flows into regions and sectors that had underperformed during 2024 and away from some of the magnificent 7 and other US technology stocks.

Sectors and markets outside of US technology performed very well as market breadth broadened. The European markets outperformed the US boosted some Trump tariff relief coupled with stronger than expected earnings and a rotation away from US technology stocks. The best performing sectors were financials and healthcare.

There was a significant rotation in the US technology sector as a Chinese company launched a new AI platform to rival US counterparts for a fraction of the price (reportedly). The news surprised many as it wasn't thought Chinese companies could produce such high quality AI models without the latest and most advanced chips.

President Trump took office during the month to begin his second term as President of America. He continued his rhetoric surrounding tariffs and how and when they will be initiated, with each passing comment causing price volatility in either direction.

Overall earnings season has been very positive for the funds holdings. We are seeing revenue and earnings growth ahead of estimates with a number of companies raising their Q1 and full year guidance to levels above what was expected. This isn't limited to a single sector or region and more so a broadening of positive news flow.

During the month, the best performing sectors for the fund were communication services (+10.8%) and consumer discretionary (+7.0%) with the laggards being consumer staples (+0.8%) and utilities (+2.0%). Looking at the individual stocks, the best performing were Fortinet (+10.7%), Coca Cola (+8.5%) and Netflix (+8.4%) with the worst performing being Alphabet (-9.2%) and Novo Nordisk (-5.5%). The fund returned 5.4% throughout January versus the benchmark return on 3.7%.

Additional factors to be considered when investing

The Fund is invested in a concentrated portfolio which comes with the risk of more volatile returns relative to the broader market.

Investors are reminded that an investment in a currency other than their own may expose them to a foreign exchange rate risk. Exchange rates may also have an independent, favourable or unfavourable impact on the value of the Fund. The Fund will invest in global equities and securities, which may expose the portfolio to specific country risks such as macroeconomic and political risks, foreign exchange risks, tax risks, settlement risks, potential limitations on the availability of market information as well as potential constraints on liquidity and the repatriation of funds.
